

GUARDS ON BEACH SEEK WRECK DEAD

Disaster at Seabright Laid to Lack of Lifesaving Equipment.

CAPTAIN AND HIS WIFE AMONG THOSE LOST

Sailor Who Clung to Rigging of Schooner Saved After Battle with Waves.

(From The Tribune Correspondent.)
Long Beach, N. J., April 16.—Lifesavers are patrolling the beach to-night on the lookout for the bodies of Captain J. H. Hardy, his wife and the six members of the crew who were lost from the lumber laden schooner Charles E. Buckley, which went ashore between here and Seabright last night.

In Monmouth Memorial Hospital is Emil Martinson, the sole survivor of the wreck. He owes his life to the fact that he had the physical strength to stick in the rigging until powerful searchlights on shore sought him out and a line was shot to him. It is the belief here to-night that a better equipped revenue cutter service in New York could have prevented any loss of life at all in the disaster. The slight of the schooner was known in time for a fast boat to get here.

Martinson is expected to recover. He was unconscious most of the night, following his terrific battle with the waves that dashed over the vessel and the swelling lumber that buffeted him as he was drawn to shore after catching the lifeline and winding it around his waist.

He has been unable to give any coherent statement of the events that happened after the Buckley struck. He recalls the captain's effort to save his wife. Deciding to stay with his ship, the commander ordered the mate to lower a boat and take Mrs. Hardy ashore. Three sailors were putting the yawl over the side when they were carried away by a roller.

Those on board then took to the rigging. Martinson saw Captain Hardy jump for one of the lines, miss and jam against the side of the schooner. He heard the captain say, "My leg is gone." After that he saw no one except the cook, who was hanging head down in the rigging and apparently was drowned.

The schooner will never float again. The seas have driven her fast into the Jersey sand and she is a total loss. Her cargo, or most of it, is floating near by and much yellow pine is washing ashore. The owners, F. L. and A. Heldritter, of Elizabeth, N. J., are having it piled as fast as it drives up on the beach. The Buckley was built in Milbridge, Me. Her captain came from Belle Island, Me.

Regarding the charges that the eight lives lost on the schooner Charles E. Buckley might have been saved if the revenue cutter service here were better equipped, Captain John F. Wild said yesterday that all he could do was sit with folded hands and let them drown.

"I am often confronted with such emergencies, but am powerless. For a long time I have been striving to get adequate cutter service for New York, but Washington is doing nothing, so far as I can see. I have only three seagoing cutters at my command when fully equipped."

MANY HEAR HARP CONCERT

Public Takes Advantage of Free Music at Wanamaker's.

A crowded auditorium greeted the artists at the harp concert at Wanamaker's yesterday afternoon, the fourth of a series held this week to which the public is admitted without cost. Alexander Russell, the concert director, played several selections on the great organ, while the other performers were Everett Snyder and Salvatore de Stefano, harpists; Miss Dorothy Howell, soprano, and Gordon Kahn, violinist.

Concerts also will be given this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and to-morrow afternoon. At the last concert selections will be played by a harp ensemble consisting of Carlos Salzedo, Miss Mildred Dilling, Miss Antonia Griffin and Miss Marion Marsh.

ROUSTED OFFICIAL HELD FOR THREAT

Night Superintendent at Lodging House Accused by Char- ities Prober.

Walter Owens, night superintendent of the municipal lodging house, went to work last night with a premonition that Commissioner John A. Kingsbury's recent investigation boded no good for employees of the Department of Charities. At the door he met Henry L. Grothman, one of the investigators, who had been living in the lodging house in the guise of a lodger.

The night superintendent knew that he was an investigator and taunted him with the fact. Upon going inside he got a letter from Superintendent York informing him that he had been dropped "for the good of the service." He went right out again and there was Grothman.

"You've done me some dirty work," Owens snarled, according to Grothman, "and I'll get you for it."

Grothman arrested Owens and arraigned him in the night court before Magistrate Krotel on a charge of threatening his life. Magistrate Krotel directed Owens to furnish a $500 bond to keep the peace or go to the workhouse for thirty days.

Last week William T. Butler, registry clerk, was fined $5 in the Essex Market police court for assaulting one of the investigators.

FREAKS DRAW STUDENTS

Medical College Sends Delegation to See Circus What-Is-It.

A delegation from the College of Physicians and Surgeons visited the circus yesterday, not to see the show, but to examine some of the freaks.

There were about twenty-five in the party, the savans spending an hour or so looking over the curiosities and taking voluminous notes. The case of a "Zip" catalogued by the press agent as a genuine "Whistler," and the fat lady interested the party greatly.

The visitors disclaimed any connection with the show in the capacity of publicity material, and confined their researches strictly to the freak department. Dr. W. C. McCallum, professor of pathology; Dr. Walter B. James, professor of clinical medicine, and Dr. R. A. Lambert had the class in charge.

JERSEY BANKS JOIN REGIONAL PROTEST

Many Plan Campaign to Escape Assignment in District of Philadelphia.

The executive committee of the New Jersey State Bankers' Association, which met yesterday at 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, received a report from the association's banking and currency committee protesting against the regional bank district lines which separate Northern New Jersey from New York City, assigning that district to Philadelphia. The banking and currency committee was authorized to prepare briefs on the subject and submit them to the Federal Reserve Board.

It was reported by the banking and currency committee that New Jersey banks north of Mercer and Ocean counties should be affiliated with New York City. Every bank in that district has signified its wish to be aligned with New York. It is said that New York banks are now soliciting deposits from manufacturing and mercantile houses in Northern New Jersey in anticipation of the assignment of New Jersey banks to the Philadelphia regional bank district.

The purpose of the meeting of the executive committee was to protest against the New Jersey bank stock tax law and to formulate plans to fight the law in court. Colonel Willard C. Fiske, of Jersey City, counsel for the association, was empowered to engage additional counsel for the legal fight.

GETS NEW ORDER IN SUIT AGAINST CHOATE

James R. Watts Likely to Have $500,000 Case Reviewed by Court at Last.

James R. Watts, formerly a wealthy coal merchant of New York, who applied two years ago to the American Bar Association for the disbarment of Joseph H. Choate, ex-ambassador to the Court of St. James, on the ground that he had been heavily damaged by professional neglect at the hands of Evans, Choate & Beaman, Mr. Choate's law firm, got a mandamus yesterday from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, directing an entry of judgment in a $500,000 damage suit brought twenty-two years ago by Watts against Walter Weston and Alfred J. Weston, who had been his partners in the coal firm of Weston Brothers & Watts.

It was alleged that when the Westons got out, Watts had a contract which would give the firm 20 cents a ton on the selling rights of the Primrose Colliery, owned by the Westons, and the contract was to run from 1890 to 1901. When Watts sued the Westons in 1885 for breach of contract, he was represented by Mr. Choate's firm.

Judge Wallace, in the United States court, directed a verdict of six cents because the actual damages could not be proved. Watts alleged that Mr. Choate failed to start a new action, as directed by the court. Other attorneys brought the second action in 1885, but Judge Wallace dismissed it on the ground that he had passed on it before.

On the failure of the Westons to have the dismissal entered on the court records Watts applied to the Federal District Court to have it done. The application was refused on the ground of the great lapse of time. Yesterday's mandamus order of the Appellate Court makes possible a review of the second trial and dismissal.

ATTACKS POLICEMAN AND GETS BEATING

Man Who Says Mayor's Detective Was Attentive to Wife Told to Keep Peace.

The next time George Darling, of 501 West 168th st., gets the impression that his rights are being flouted by a policeman he will think it over well before showing his resentment. He showed it yesterday, and as a result got a beating. Some time in a cell and was instructed by a magistrate to keep the peace for six months.

Darling went to the home of his wife's aunt yesterday afternoon in search of his wife. In the hallway, he says, he met Mrs. Darling and Detective John J. Phelan, who is attached to Mayor Mitchell's office. He recognized Phelan, he says, as a policeman who has been paying Mrs. Darling attention for more than a year. Phelan had a hand on Mrs. Darling's shoulder, the husband said.

Darling made for Phelan, and they grappled and fell in the hallway. After a rough and tumble fight Phelan got a grip on Darling's throat and took him a prisoner to the West 152d st. police station.

In the men's court last night Phelan told his story, and then Magistrate Krotel called Mrs. Darling to the stand. Her testimony was wrong from her only after threats, but it refuted practically everything the policeman had testified to. Despite the husband's protest the magistrate discharged the witnesses and ordered Darling to keep the peace for six months.

HIS GLASS EYE EXPLODES Heat Over Mexican Insult May Explain Accident.

(By Telegraph to The Tribune.) Huntington, W. Va., April 16.—While reading the morning paper the glass eye of M. C. Canterbury, a farmer near here, exploded. Canterbury was not injured.

Canterbury was leaning over his paper, his attention riveted on the situation in Mexico, when his artificial eye burst. The explosion was similar to that of an electric light bulb. There was a lot of noise, with little force behind it.

Glass eyes, like incandescent lights, are made with a near-vacuum.

Just what caused the explosion was more than opticians here could explain.

POLICE SILENT ON JEWEL THEFT CLEWS

Man Who Locked Store and Robbed Window Used Pad- locks of Obsolete Type.

The police and Burns detectives were confident yesterday of the prompt arrest of the criminal who locked in the employees of Michael Rosenthal at his jewelry shop, 1356 Broadway, shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday night and made his escape with $15,000 worth of jewels from the display window. Information, not divulged but considered most important, was received yesterday by Lieutenant John Becker and Detectives Van Twiesten and Phelan, of the West 20th st. police station.

The man for whom they are seeking is not the ordinary type of "strong-arm," but is believed to be a clever out-of-town crook. The theory that after fastening the Broadway doors of the Sheridan Building from the inside he made his escape through the Sixth ave. entrance has been discarded. The superintendent of the building was near the Sixth ave. entrance at the time and no one passed him. It is believed that after watching his pursuers abandon the lashed Broadway door and rush around the corner to Sixth ave. the robber either untied the lashings and stroled forth on Broadway or else got out by way of the roof and emerged through some other building. The superintendent of the Sheridan Building was the first to reach the Broadway entrance from the inside. He found the lashings loosed.

About the only clues the police have are the two padlocks and the chain, the tape with which the brick was wrapped and the lashing used to fasten the doors of the Sheridan Building.

Old Grammar Alumni to Dine.

The annual dinner of the B. D. L. Sutherland Association, the alumni of Grammar School 3, in Grove St., one of the oldest schools in the city, will be held on Tuesday evening, April 28, at the Hotel Martineau. An election of officers will take place before the dinner. City officials and many professional men and merchants are numbered among graduates of the school.

Belmont Not in New Orleans.

August Belmont, Jr., denied yesterday the published report that he has recently been in New Orleans, where his trunks were seized. He said he has not left the city, but has been at his desk daily in the office of the banking house of August Belmont & Co.

BANKERS DEMAND LIMIT FOR SIEGEL

Whitman Urged to Show No Leniency in Prosecuting Indictments.

The exclusive announcement in The Tribune Monday that the bankers who lost heavily by the failure of the Fourth Street Store, the Simpson Crawford Company, and the Henry Siegel Company, of Boston, were insistent that District Attorney Whitman prosecute Henry Siegel and Frank E. Vogel to the limit on the fourteen indictments now pending against them was confirmed yesterday, when Gilbert O. Thorne, vice-president of the National Park Bank, Stephen Baker, of the Bank of the Metropolis, and James S. Alexander, of the National Bank of Commerce, called upon Mr. Whitman to deny other published reports that they favored clemency to the men.

The bankers, whose institutions lost upward of $50,000 by the failures, told Mr. Whitman that the banking community wished no leniency shown. They had no desire to hound the men, but they did want action, and to that end offered the District Attorney all the facilities of their banks.

On his part Mr. Whitman assured the bankers that he had never thought the banks favored the compounding of felonies, and that he intended placing both men on trial as soon as the Becker case ends.

GUILTY OF THEFT, SHE TAKES POISON

Woman Sentenced to Reform- atory for Shoplifting At- tempts Suicide.

Miss May Moore, twenty-six years old, of 77 3d st., New Dorp, Staten Island, is in the Long Island College Hospital, Brooklyn, suffering from poison taken with suicidal intent, after being sentenced yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions, Brooklyn, to Bedford Reformatory for shoplifting.

She was charged with stealing silk garments valued at $75 from a department store. The police say her name is Matilda Maxwell.

After being found guilty she swooned in the courtroom and was taken to an adjoining room and revived by Miss Frances Leach, probation officer. While the latter had her back turned Miss Moore ran into another room and locked the door. When the door was broken open the woman was lying unconscious on the floor, with an empty four-ounce bottle, which had contained lyeol, and a hypodermic syringe beside her.

Leiter Verdict Set Aside.

Justice Hendrick set aside yesterday the verdict recently obtained by W. R. Franklin & Co. against Joseph Leiter for $50,000, in connection with the International Power Company pool, which fell through. Acting on a motion filed by Mr. Leiter's counsel at the time of the last trial of the case, the justice had now ordered a new trial.

SLEUTHS FOIL AND TRAP AUTO THIEVES

Chief of Gang and Well Known Racing Man May Be Arrested To-day.

FAUROT'S SQUAD ENDS SERIES OF BIG THEFTS

Twelve Taken and Nine Have Confessed—Details of Car Plots Revealed.

Formed three months ago, Inspector Faurot's special automobile squad, composed of Detectives J. Finn, T. Hughes, L. Hyams and H. Meyers, and aided by Assistant District Attorney Deuel, has practically checked the theft of automobiles in the greater city and brought to justice most of the thieves.

Twelve arrests have been made and nine of the prisoners have pleaded guilty. Two of the nine were sent for a year to the penitentiary, one to Elmira and five remanded for sentence. Three others, pleading not guilty, are to face trial within a month.

More than twenty of the stolen cars have been recovered and the chief of the thieves, it is expected, will be arrested to-day or to-morrow. His arrest will be followed by that of a prominent race-track man in Kings County.

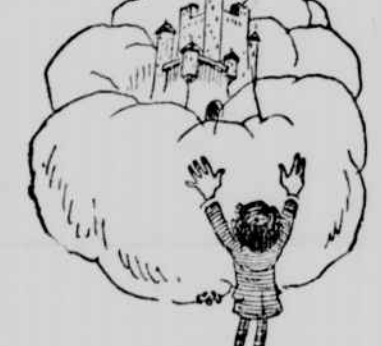

The arrest of Charles Rudy, December 23, accused of stealing a car valued at $4,400, gave the detectives their first clue to the other thieves. The man confessed and provided evidence which resulted in the apprehension of "Spiky" Travis, "Jack" Chanler and John Gargier, an alleged broker for stolen cars. They were arrested December 27 and 28.

Harry Weyer was arrested January 8, charged with stealing a Hudson from in front of the Astor, on the same day as Packard, valued at $2,000, was recovered in Baltimore; another high priced car was recovered on January 23. On February 22 recovered on Curran and Fred Huff were arrested, charged with stealing a car which was finally recovered in Troy, N. Y.

Recoveries of cars followed each other very rapidly. An E. M. F., stolen on February 17, was found on the 25th. On the same day the squad located a touring car which had been stolen from a garage at 731 Seventh ave. in a shell at Astoria, Long Island, where it was being painted in the presence of several policemen.

Ralph Martin, James Martin and Calhoun Fuchs were taken. Martin and Calhoun were sent to the penitentiary and Fuchs to Elmira.

So thorough had been the work of the detectives that Charles Brush, a young chauffeur, indicted by the grand jury on

GRAVEL GRAFT JURY SEES FILMS AGAIN

Defendant Admits Private Road Was Made with Material Left Over.

Riverhead, N. Y., April 16.—Before the defence began to-day the jury in the Coram-Patchogue state road graft trial again begged permission to attend a motion picture show, saying they needed mental refreshment after being locked up since Monday. Justice Kapper let them go, with a guard of four deputies.

When the defence opened the court stated that the sole question counsel need dwell upon was whether the proper amount of Peekskill gravel was used in paving the road.

Leigh Robartes, the accused engineer, swore that six inches of gravel had been laid, and that nowhere was the average width less than 15 feet 9 inches. An omission of puddling had been due to a scarcity of water and an absence of rain, he said.

Robartes denied that he had ever said that some of the gravel used had come out of the Lexington avenue subway. He also denied that in his discussion with Thomas Smith, the Coram farmer, he had referred to the "ring" at Albany. He stated that what he said was that his "superiors" at Albany were not likely to whip him like a schoolboy.

Another of the defendants, John Huber, engineer for the Suffolk Contracting Company, denied having said that his "only worry" was that the road might not hold together long enough to let him get out of town. Under cross-examination Huber admitted that a private road had been made with material left over.

Eugene Smith, civil engineer, of Telip, declared that tests he had made showed an average of 5.31 inches of gravel and a width of 16.4 feet.

MAY TAKE CONTRIBUTIONS Not Illegal for Members of Con- gress to Ask Colleagues.

[From The Tribune Bureau.]
Washington, April 16.—A resolution reported to the House to-day by the Elections Committee declares that it is not a violation of the federal criminal code for a Senator or Representative to solicit or receive contributions for political purposes from other Senators and Representatives, and to solicit such contributions by letters written in the Senate or House office buildings.

Representative Mann, Republican leader, asked whether congressional assessment letters of the Democratic Congressional Committee were in violation of the law.
